BACKGROUND

Short bio:

Marcus Vance, 34, is a boutique e-commerce owner in Austin, TX, earning $85k-$110k annually. He runs all core operations solo and works over 60 hours a week scaling his brand. While he knows short-form video is essential for growth, he lacks video editing skills. Balancing content creation with daily business tasks leaves him overwhelmed and time-strapped.

Lifestyle:

Working 60+ hours a week, Marcus needs short-form videos on Instagram Reels and TikTok to attract customers. However, manually editing footage, sourcing audio, and striving for posting consistency leaves him completely overwhelmed and stretched thin

Frustration:

Spending 4 hours editing a single 30-second video pulls Marcus away from strategic growth. This leads to inconsistent posting, content burnout, and amateur-looking videos that fail to convert viewers or beat shifting algorithms.
